Foredrag av professor Alain Pellet om temaet «Continental and Anglo-Saxon traditions in pleading before international courts». Alain Pellet er professor ved universitetet Paris Ouest, Nanterre/La Défense, og har tidligere blant annet vært leder for FNs folkerettskommisjon. Han har prosedert over 40 saker for Den internasjonale domstol i Haag, og må derfor anses som en av verdens aller mest erfarne folkerettslige prosessfullmektiger, se vedlagte CV. Sammen med Daillier og Forteau er han også kjent som forfatter av Droit International Public, 8. utgave 2009 (1709 sider), den mest brukte franskspråklige lærebok og håndbok i folkerett, og som i tidligere utgaver helt eller delvis er bl.a. oversatt til gresk, portugisisk, russisk, spansk og ungarsk. Foredraget og diskusjonen vil gi en unik mulighet til å få konkretisert ved hjelp av eksempler betydningen av de viktigste ulike rettstradisjoner og -kulturer i folkerettslig rettsanvendelse og prosedyre.

Med vennlig hilsen

Siv Myrvold
